Heaven with a Harbor View

This Victorian-era duo of gardens boasts mature trees and shrubs hemmed by lichen-covered stone walls and boxwood. Specimen trees and ancient Rhododendrons back up more ephemeral summer plantings that thrive in both shade and sunlight. Surprisingly private, the gardens also have sweeping views of coastal Southport.

Secluded Forest Glade

A house of many gables is removed from the beaten path and surrounded by mature sweeps of evergreens and deciduous trees. Nestled among many native trees, the owners have carved out an area to create a garden of varied vistas to delight the eye in all seasons.

Rural Colonial Revival

Sheltered by Hemlock hedges and towering Rhododendrons, this private garden has both structured, intimate garden rooms and sweeping vistas of natural field. The serious gardener will find many rarities here to delight the senses.
